Tzvi Kantor

Senior Content Designer · Content Systems

I'm a full-stack wordsmith with 10+ years of product content across SaaS, enterprise security, and healthcare: microcopy, knowledge architecture, voice systems, and conversational UX. I build the style guides, design-system integrations, and AI-assisted workflows that keep teams consistent at scale, and train the people who use them.

East End Neuropsych

2026–Present

Digital Product & Content Systems Consultant

- Joined the initial build of the practice's patient platform, then took ownership to complete, launch, and operate it. Created a custom intake pipeline handling signatures, insurance documents, and consent, and the staff back office where the front desk manages submissions, fees, and secure accounts.
- Built an automated provider outreach pipeline across 2,500+ targeted providers: federal data researched and prioritized, four audience-specific message variants, and human-approved sending with delivery tracking, avoiding dozens of hours of manual campaign work to date.
- Runs the practice's content and discoverability ecosystem: clinical education, the medical-safety standard governing it, patient resources, SEO, and social, plus the search infrastructure underneath, from structured data to internal linking and ongoing site optimization.

CyberArk, now part of Palo Alto Networks

2025–2026

Principal Content Designer & Editor

- First UX writer inside a 20-person technical writing organization spanning four time zones. Trained the team in content design through a workshop series grounded in how people read, decide, and make mistakes, and held editorial oversight of product copy.
- Authored the first microcopy style guide, then integrated it into the tools the team used: an AI assistant helping technical writers draft faster and more consistently, and later a Figma Make and Claude workflow turning a Jira ticket into design-system UI with pre-governed copy, ready for writer review.
- Wrote end-to-end UX content for identity security flows across access control, session management, and third-party vendor access, working with product, design, and engineering from ideation through prototyping to release.

Elementor

2021–2025

Senior UX Writer

- First dedicated UX writer on a website builder running on 10M+ active WordPress installs. Owned UX content across the editor, platform, hosting, onboarding, dashboards, and transactional email through dozens of release cycles, and grew the function into a team by hiring and onboarding new UX writers.
- Made content standards part of the product's Figma design system, so components carried approved copy patterns defining structure, syntax, and cadence. Extended those standards into shared prompts and custom GPTs that turned a ticket and a component into an on-standard first draft.
- Shaped the product's user-facing support chatbot with Product, Design, and Support: collaborated on the interaction tree and the UX, and owned the copy and the content variables, which shifted with the user's tone, their state of mind, and whether a human was available.
- Established one voice with contextual tone across product, marketing, support, onboarding, and the knowledge base. Founded a 12-person cross-trade writers guild, ran workshops, and held final editorial approval on junior writers' work.

Wix

2018–2021

Knowledge Base & UX Writer

- Owned UX content for Wix Payments from pre-launch into a major revenue product, across merchant onboarding, payouts, and account states under legal and compliance review, then across Restaurants and Multilingual.
- Built the knowledge-base architecture for Wix Logo, authoring 30+ articles and the category structure behind them, and managed 200+ articles across Wix's media products: photos, video, music, podcasts, and a media-editing tool documented as it grew. Ran localization across 18+ languages.
